JULIE LYTHCOTT-HAIMS

The College Admissions "Arms Race"

Bankhead Theater on November 10, 2016 — Thursday, 7:30 pm

Students and their parents are stressed to the breaking point over getting into college. Witty and wise, Julie Lythcott-Haims is a tonic for what ails this generation of kids and parents. While Stanford's Dean of Freshmen, she became a fierce advocate for students and critical of parental involvement in the day-to-day lives of college students. Her first book, How to Raise an Adult: Break Free of the Overparenting Trap and Prepare Your Kid for Success was a New York Times best seller. She will offer sound advice on the college application process and alternatives to the college admissions "arms race" frenzy.

Tickets: $32/$36/$40 Adults & $16 Students 21 and Under
